Birding in Bundala; A Safari Picnic

Bundala National Park (South East)

A Safari into Bundala National Park with a Picnic served in a scenic location inside the park.

Set out on an early morning or afternoon safari at Bundala National Park which is renowned for plenty of bird sightings, especially during the migratory season from December to April. This is not the place if you are running after sightings of the bigger animals but if you are lucky, you might still come across a few elephants.

The highlight of the experience is the picnic with Sri Lankan traditional snacks and a cup of tea served in a scenic location in the middle of the national park towards the end of the safari.
