

Discovering the Colonial History of Pyin Oo Lwin

Mandalay

Walk through in colonial Hill station's beautifully maintained gardens, which feature over 480 species of flowers and trees. Enjoy a horse and cart.

Meet your guide in the morning for a ride by private taxi to the National Kandawgyi Botanical Gardens in the city of Pyin Oo Lwin, referred to colloquially as Maymyo. Nearly 70 km east of Mandalay, Pyin Oo Lwin became a hill station and summer capital in the late 19th century during British rule, because of its high elevation and cool climate. You will have the opportunity to walk through this hill station's beautifully maintained gardens, which feature over 480 species of flowers and trees. You will also visit other places in this former colonial getaway, including the turreted Candacraig Hotel that was once the British Club; the former Japanese Police station; the All Saints Church, built by the British in
